Description

Well painted American Impressionist landscape signed Everet. The artist was a Chinese/American painter who lived and worked in Hackensack, New Jersey.

I met the artist on many occasions in the late 1990s when I lived in New York and he was a very talented and pleasant chap.

I asked him to paint different commissions for a client who wanted a certain color or subject and he was always able to amaze me with what he could produce.

I have many paintings by him in my own collection.

This is an oil on canvas.

The piece was in a private collection towards the late 1990s and has been recently re-framed and revarnished.

The artist worked for an Art Gallery called Art Lines International in New Jersey.

The artist worked in an impressionist style and this is a very good example of such a painting.

The painting has been framed in a vintage-style off-white painted frame.
